

Gurvinder Gill, Clinical Pharmacist

Gurvinder is a clinical pharmacist and has experience working in multidisciplinary settings in primary care and oncology. He is a certified diabetes educator and is currently completing his Doctor of Pharmacy program. He has peer reviewed many articles and continuing pharmacy professional development programs. In his free time, he pursues his passion for photography, travel and sustainability.

Session: Managing medications and diabetic supplies

- Objectives:
1. How often and when should I be checking my blood sugar?
 2. How to manage low blood sugar (hypoglycemia)
 3. Myths around insulin and how to manage your own insulin
 4. Feeling comfortable with diabetic supplies